It is no longer a game where you can go where you want when you want and how you want. The creative director of GTA Online told the media at the Game Awards that the game is more akin to The Crew, and the general vibe is more like that of Red Dead Redemption, aiming to be more of a mature game. In its place is a new set of incentives meant to keep players playing, by providing a variety of rewards for doing so. Players who commit to the most missions and stick to the guidelines will receive custom rewards as they scale up. Rockstar has also made a point of encouraging players to share content with their friends, as they would a normal game. Grand Theft Auto Online is no longer a sandbox title. "There is not a single creative individual who is just enjoying themselves, they're all here for the team, they're here for the shared mission, the shared goal, and that's why I think people are so happy to play it. They're playing for the team. And I think that's what keeps people going back to play, because they get so much out of it, they get so much in return from it." Rockstar's creative director Tim Willits said that there was a sense of unity during development of the game. "Everyone is in it for the same reason," he said. "Everyone is playing for the same reward. �
