A feature called Software Sync keeps a copy of the read-write (RW) EC firmware in the RW part of the system firmware image. At boot, if the RW EC firmware doesn't match the copy in the system firmware, the ECs RW section is re-flashed. While this is great for normal use as it makes updating the EC and system firmware a unified operation, it can be a challenge for EC firmware development. To disable software sync a flag can be set in the system firmware. Run the following commands from a shell on the device to disable Software Sync and turn on other developer-friendly flags (note that write protect must be disabled for this to work): SP flash tool is an application which principally helps you to flash Stock ROM, Custom recovery and fixing in some extreme cases (Flash recovery, firmware update, unbrick bricked Android device, and so on).
